SPRING 2018

THE EDUCATION ISSUE WORLD IMPACT NETWORK

Launching The New International University

In February, The New International University (TNIU) hosted former and new students at a dinner in Asia to celebrate the launch of the University; TNIU was registered with the Department of Education in November 2017. What a joy to reconnect with former students (part of WIN's previous partnership with The King's University) and new students to rejoice in this God appointed occasion. Long time friend and partner Professor Alan Ross, from Scotland, prophesied over the University stating, "And this day I'm giving The New International University a banner of righteousness to wave over this nation. And there will be celebration as you do this. There will be joy as you do this."

TWO DECADES OF INVESTMENT: WORLD IMPACT NETWORK'S RICH AND DIVERSE HISTORY

Local History

Over the last two decades WIN has impacted leaders across the world. WIN's humanitarian efforts have addressed poverty and natural disasters. WIN's Renewal Food Bank, now a separate non-profit organization, fed over thirty five thousand people in its thirteen-year history. Furthermore, WIN's conversational English program, Youth-with-a-Purpose program, and Re-invention Seminars touched and changed the lives of countless local immigrant adults, youth, unemployed professionals and small business owners. Historically WIN, with its partners, also supported efforts such as rebuilding after hurricane Katrina, educating food bank recipients about diabetes, and holding First Aid & Disaster Preparedness programs for the local community.

International History

Humanitarian support, first aid training, blood borne diseases training, together with leadership training and skill development, have been the hallmark of WIN's international efforts. Countries like Papua New Guinea, The Philippines, Sri Lanka, Belarus, Mexico, Uganda, Kenya and others have benefited from WIN's investment of time, money and human resources.

Focusing on Higher Education

In 2007, in cooperation with Bakke Graduate University, WIN initiated its first Christian higher education cohort in Asia. Later, in partnership with The Kings University, WIN graduated 24 Doctor of Ministry Students and 16 Master of Divinity Students, many of whom now serve as partners and adjunct faculty at The New International University (TNIU), WIN's newest initiative. The dream to train leaders around the world to be more effective practitioners became a reality last November when TNIU was registered, with the Washington State Student Achievement Council, and could begin enrolling students.

Educational Philosophy

Education does not immediately provide food, shelter, medicine or healthcare, as is the case with humanitarian aid. Education provides critical thinking skills and stimulates creative solutions oriented to solving the world's most complex problems. Access to higher education is key to the innovation needed to change the systems that keep people enslaved in hopelessness. Education provides leaders with the tools to challenge tyrannical models of leadership that keep people from reaching their full potential for God. Knowledge is not only for the elite. Knowledge is power and when people feel empowered they are better able and willing to find creative solutions to the real world problems that plague their communities.

Inauguration of The New International University

Thirty students from Asia attended the University's launch in February 2018. Many were existing students from our previous partnerships, and many were new and excited about the possibility of engaging with higher education while remaining in their own contexts.

Much still needs to be done

Our most urgent need is technology and technology skills. Although TNIU has on-site courses for students from sensitive countries, its primary delivery system is online education. WIN needs the human resources to assist with uploading courses onto our online platform, including help with integrating a student management and a learning management system for effectiveness and easy access of course content by students. WIN recognizes that this is a time consuming endeavor, which requires skilled personnel and financial resources.

"To know why to do something is wisdom. To know how to do it is skill. To know when to do it is judgment. To strive to do it best is dedication. To do it for the benefit of others is service. To want to help others is compassion. To do it quietly is humility. To get the job done is achievement. To empower others to do all of these things is leadership." - U.S. Army

TNIU STUDENT FEEDBACK:

"The seriousness of addiction shared by Jenny and her own testimony allowed me to understand the issue's in today's society. This is a global issue and it also shows the importance of the prophetic ministry in today's world."

"The course is very great for me because i can have a different view about prophet from the bible. It inspires me a lot to have an objective view to theology."

"Through the work of God and different area in prophetic ministry in history; through professor's own life example, it enhances and brings our own thinking to the next level."

TNIU Administrative Director

The idea of bringing Christian based education to leaders in emerging countries is very exciting and desperately needed. After spending time with TNIU students in Asia, it changed from being just an idea, to a tangible opportunity that I could help invest in. An idea that can change communities all over the world. I now understand the incredible need to bring education to people in their own countries at prices they can afford.

I was able to meet real people, with real stories of how grateful they are that TNIU has given them the chance to get a degree and the training they need to go back and minister to the people in their churches and communities. Because of the work that TNIU is doing, they now have the ability to reach people that no missionary would be able to reach.

TNIU LAUNCH - LEADER EXPERIENCES

Written by Jenny Jensen
TNIU Adjunct Professor

In my past work with WIN and TNIU, I did not have a true understanding regarding how much WIN deeply impacts the nations across the world. Through my experience with visiting students in Hong Kong this past February, my eyes were opened and my heart deeply moved by the leadership and education that Peter and Gaby have tirelessly provided over the years. It was an honor to see the vision of WIN being fulfilled as the goal of impacting church leaders in Asia continues.

WIN's mission to train up leaders and create a ripple effect of lasting change within the individual's personal community does not just occur in distant countries. Their mission occurs on the home front and is being accomplished within me. As a recovering alcoholic and former person suffering from deep pain, Gaby and Peter came alongside me, offering endless guidance, support and encouragement. They helped guide me along the path God has created for me. They supported me in getting professional help and sat with me for endless hours, working through the pain I had, eventually encouraging me to pursue my Master's degree. I have been sober now for over 4 years and have just accepted a Program Manager position at a local drug and alcohol treatment facility. Their love, guidance and leadership qualities that they poured into me will now be used to reach other suffering drug addicts and alcoholics, as well as the clinicians who care for them. Through their vision in building up leaders to impact the world with the gospel, countless individuals will continue to be reached!
